

Medical Director (DK)

Broad and clinically advanced product pipeline

Y-mAbs Therapeutics A/S is a clinical stage biopharmaceutical company focused on the development and commercialization of novel antibody-based therapeutic products for the treatment of cancer. Y-mAbs has a broad and clinically advanced product pipeline, including two late-stage and clinically validated product candidates. Y-mAbs Therapeutics just went public on NASDAQ on September 21st raising $96 million in its very successful IPO. Y-mAbs has communicated that it plans to use $34.5 million of the IPO cash for finish clinical testing of naxitamab and another $24.4 million for omburtamab, and the rest on earlier-stage drug programs, also in cancer.

As Medical Director for Y-mAbs, you will get the opportunity to contribute to state of the art research and be a part of a fantastic journey. With direct report to SVP Chief Medical Officer, you will oversee the direction, planning, execution, and interpretation of clinical trials of one or more clinical programs.

Also, a key role is to expand and maintain high quality international KOL network within relevant areas. You will also be part of medical evaluations of new target proposals and responsible for designing new clinical programs including First-in-Human clinical studies as well as pivotal trials.

Medical Doctor with early stage clinical experience

You have several years of experience from a Medical position in R&D within biotech or pharmaceutical industry. You are Medical Doctor with preferably completion of a residency program. Experience with Health Authority meetings and working with CROs is an advantage. Additionally, you possess the ability to communicate fluent in English, both written and orally.
